Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The White House The Recent experience of our Government on the Mexican border demonstrated the essential weaknesses of our military system. I shall attempt to point these out, indicate some of the contributing causes and make bold to suggest a plan for a military system. It is dignifying these suggestions to refer to them in the aggregate as a plan. Any thorough plan for a military system must take into consideration not only strictly military matters, but industrial conditions as they may affect our military policy. I shall make no reference to the necessary changes in our industrial organization in aid of our military requirements, nor shall I speak of the facilities for producing a greater number of army officers, and the organization of our forces, and their division into the different arms of the service. Neither shall I speak of any plan for the equipment of the army; the required number of field guns, aeroplanes, poison gas generators and other machinery of war, essential for military operations. The only feature of the general plan to be presented by me is the one dealing with the military training of our men and the raising of men in required number for the army of the United States. I shall refer to the recent mobilization only as it emphasizes the weakness of the system. Our regiment, the First Illinois Infantry, answered the call of the President and reported at Fort Sam Houston. The experience gained by the regiment in Texas was valuable, but the time, energy and money expended did not produce in results the possible maximum.
