

Between God and Man: Six Sermons on the Priestly Office

---

By Pope Innocent III

The Catholic University of America Press, United States, 2004. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 214 x 138 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. When Innocent III became pope in 1198 he announced that he had been elevated to a position between God and man . This audacious claim has often been quoted to characterize the papal monarchy over which he presided and the secular powers he wielded for the 18 years of his controversial tenure. The sermons presented in this collection cast a clearer light on Innocent s concept of what his duties were as priest and bishop. Innocent was renowned as a preacher, one who faithfully fulfilled that pastoral duty throughout his career. The group of sermons featured in this book represents only a small sample of his homiletic works. That they are almost exclusively devoted to spiritual concerns provides valuable insight into Innocent s papal priorities. The six sermons included are: the inaugural sermon of Innocent s consecration, the opening sermon of Lateran Council IV, an anniversary sermon, two Roman Synod sermons, and another on the constitution of the priesthood. The major theme throughout the sermons is the responsibility of clergy to function as intermediaries between divinity and...
