Deposits Glaciated rocks south of Poplar Lodge. of the same kind are now in process of formation at the mouth of Sturgeon river, varying and shifting in different seasons by the swinging of the river channel at its outlet. Smaller streams, like Sand creek at Poplar lodge, are doing similar work on a corresponding scale. The sinking of the level of lake Warren and its successors seems to have been stepwise, to judge by the succession of terraces. How far north the stratified lake sands extend is not yet determined, but they are found well developed at the first falls on Red Paint river a few miles above its mouth, where the portage trail crosses a flat sand plain about 100 feet above the river below the falls, which is perhaps a foot or two above lake Nipigon. Beyond this to...
